
PURPOSE

The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) is committed to providing a safe and secure workplace for all employees, clients, and members of the public. This policy informs all employees that they have the right and responsibility to communicate their concerns about workplace violence issues to appropriate levels of supervision and, as required, to higher levels of department management.

For workplace violence involving patients in the State hospitals; see APF 138.

This policy also sets forth a zero-tolerance standard for actual or threatened violence. The zero-tolerance standards require that all acts or threats of violence are:

- Reported to management and documented via the MDHHS incident report.
- Investigated in compliance with respective department policies and procedures and/or in accordance with Michigan law, as applicable.
- Dealt with appropriately and timely, if substantiated.
- Responded to in writing, within a reasonable time, regarding substantiated actual or threatening behavior; see zero-tolerance notices in this item.

It is the responsibility of each employee to report any occurrence of violence or threatening behavior that s/he may witness, while on official state business or engaged in approved work-related activities. Threatening behavior may or may not include an act of physical violence. However, the department, will presume that any threat, whether verbal, written, visual, or by gesture, constitutes an expression of intent to do harm.

The procedures that accompany this policy outline an orderly process for addressing employee and MDHHS client/visitor acts of violence or threatening behavior, and standards for issuing zero-tolerance notices. All work sites must conform to this policy and procedure. However, rapid response team coordinators may enhance their local plan to accommodate specific office circumstances.

approved work-related activities, and involve any employee, MDHHS client or visitor (family member, friend, member of the community, etc.) are strictly prohibited.

All reported threats or incidents of violence will be promptly investigated, as appropriate. The department will presume that any threat, whether verbal, written, visual, or by gesture, constitutes an expression of intent to do harm.

Employee

All employees must treat other employees, clients, and members of the public with courtesy. Persons who violate this policy will be subject to department actions deemed necessary and appropriate to ensure safety.

Any employee, who engages in an act of physical violence or threatening behavior while on official state business, or while engaged in approved work-related activities, should not expect to maintain privacy during an investigation of the incident. Threats of violence may result in a search of the desks, lockers, and other storage space. Actual or threatened violence may result in the issuance of a zero-tolerance notice and involvement of law enforcement, as needed; see procedures in this item. Persons who violate this policy will be subject to department actions deemed necessary and appropriate to ensure safety of employees, clients and visitors.

Examples of prohibited behavior toward a department employee, or any individual or group, while conducting department business:

- Brandishing an item with intent to use it as a weapon or to do physical harm.

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

All employees who observe or are the victim of violence or threatening behavior committed in the workplace, on MDHHS property, while on official state business, or while engaged in work related activities, have a duty to report the incident to their supervisor or other levels of management, and to complete an online incident report

(<http://mMDHHSintranet/dmds/IncidentReport.asp>). Managers must ensure the on-line incident report is completed if the employee is unavailable or unable to report.

All reported incidents will be investigated as appropriate. During the investigation, management will make every reasonable effort to protect the identity of the employee making the report. However, if the incident is substantiated, confidentiality may no longer be possible. Management will investigate any allegations of retaliation against, or coercion of, employees or others for making reports, or for cooperating in an investigation. Reports for incidents occurring in state owned buildings should also be reported to the on-site facilities manager.

Failure by the employee or management to report incidents as required in this section may result in an investigation of non-compliance.

Rapid Response Teams

Violence is manifested in many forms. Although it is not possible to address all conceivable violent situations, there are three specific circumstances that call for different methods of response:

1. A physical altercation while on official state business or while engaged in approved work-related activities. Normally this event will be handled locally; see procedures in this item.
2. When a person makes a verbal or written threat of serious future violence or manifests aberrant behavior that causes others to feel endangered.

Example: Threats “to blow up the building”, “shoot everyone here”, “go postal” or a veiled threat.

Such threats must be referred to Bureau of Organizational Services and the Office of Human Resources Labor Relations, followed with an online incident report.

3. Any act of violence is occurring. In this event immediate steps must be taken to secure the area and ensure the safety of all persons present, then notify Bureau of Organizational Services and complete an online incident report.

In the case of 1 and 2 a special Rapid Response Team (RRT) may be convened. This RRT may include representatives of Labor Relations, Legal Services, Bureau of Organizational Services, Department of Technology, Management and Budget, facilities/building manager, law enforcement agencies, and / or representatives from other jurisdictions as deemed appropriate to adequately respond to the situation.

To quickly and appropriately respond to major violence or threats of violence, each office shall establish a Rapid Response Team (RRT). It is recommended that the RRT include the county director, district office manager, institution director or facilities/building manager and that the RRT coordinator be selected from these individuals. Each RRT coordinator is responsible for determining the appropriate response to each occurrence. RRT's should meet regularly, plan and execute drills, and maintain a current roster of members.

The RRT may be assembled by the coordinator to assist in the investigation of a work site incident by documenting information such as the nature of the event, the date and time, person(s) involved, identification of witnesses, or to assist in securing the safety of employees and the general public. The RRT may also assist in the development of strategies to minimize risks for violence to occur.

Investigations

Coordinate all investigations involving employees with the Bureau of Organizational Services and/or Labor Relations. Timeliness in responding to an incident, accuracy in reporting the situation, documenting the investigation, recording the findings, and preparing recommendations for resolution or administrative action are crucial components of a complete investigation. Guidelines for investigations are set forth in the applicable labor agreements. Report allegations of a criminal nature to appropriate law enforcement personnel and via the department's incident report.

Education and Training

Employee education and training are important aspects in maintaining a work environment free from acts of violence and threats of violence. Employees may be scheduled for trainings on topics that will enable them to effectively deal with circumstances encountered on the job. Courses related to promoting positive behavior, conflict resolution, mitigating or defusing potentially violent situations, coping with personal or job-related problems, and safety are currently available through this department and the Department of Civil Service sponsored training programs.

Security

Building security measures are an important aspect of providing employees with a safe and secure work environment. The responsibility for developing local emergency preparedness plans rest with the local office manager; see PUB 1190, Emergency Procedures Handbook for Leased Facilities. Include the RRT in developing such plans. The safety and security coordinator is also available to assist.

Traumatic Incident Stress Management

The Traumatic Incident Stress Management (TISM) Program available through the Michigan Civil Service /Employee Benefits/Employee Service Program \(ESP\) aids employees through participation in specialized group debriefings. Such meetings are usually held within 24 to 72 hours from the time of the event. Employees who have been traumatically affected by an act of workplace violence or threatening behavior are encouraged to participate in the TISM services.

The following procedures are applicable to employees and members of the general population, respectively.

ZERO-TOLERANCE NOTICES

By standardizing and providing a step process for issuing zero-tolerance notices, it is anticipated there will be a decrease in prolonged client agitation/aggressiveness for those who receive the notice, as the zero-tolerance notice will not initially ban clients unless warranted by the situation.

The criteria that trigger the issuance of a zero-tolerance notice include the following circumstances:

- Disruptive behavior that is characterized by a loud voice that is aggressive or hostile in nature, or mannerisms that would be considered threatening/ menacing, uncontrollable, or any actions short of actual assault.

- A physical altercation involving any individual(s) or group while on official state business, engaged in approved work-related activities or while conducting business with the department.
- A verbal or written threat of serious future violence or which exhibits aberrant behavior (“to blow up the building”, “shoot everyone here”, “go postal” or a veiled threat) that causes others to feel endangered.
- An act of violence has occurred.

Prior to the issuance of a zero-tolerance notice, a MDHHS incident report must be completed and submitted online, with a copy to the county director or designee. The content in the incident report will determine the level of zero-tolerance notice to be issued. Levels include:

- Warning - An informational notice regarding the situation as reported, and reference to the department’s zero-tolerance policy, including a warning against repeat behavior.
- Change in Delivery of Service - An informational notice regarding the situation as reported, and reference to the department’s zero-tolerance policy, including instructions on how the individual will be able to conduct future business with the department.

Note: This notice, depending on the circumstances, also allows for the inclusion of a situation review date. The department’s goals are to reach a mutual understanding, when possible, and deliver services to clients in a convenient, yet safe environment.
